The content that Brooke shared represented really a new wave of insights.

The material had a lot of depth, and the real-life cases that Brooke explored helped to make the ideas accessible, so that we were able to engage with the problems from many perspectives.

At the time of the presentation, my team and I were not actively working on our approach to business strategy. However, when the moment came to delve into thinking about strategy, going back to the approaches Brooke showed us has helped me to make progress towards my goals.

That is why I really appreciate this experience of working with Brooke.

Brooke came to speak with our Women's Leadership Group about a challenge women face across our industry: getting credit for our ideas. He offered useful techniques for us to work with, with no pretense about silver-bullet solutions. His honesty and his empathy about the obstacles we face opened the door to a valuable, no-nonsense dialogue in our group.

I really appreciate that Brooke doesn't shy away from difficult topics, that he's always got an example and a story to make a conversation relatable, and that he's realistic about what's involved in change.

Brooke possesses an exceptional ability to connect with an audience through his approachable style and ability to distill complex information into pragmatic and actionable insights. As a speaker at FP Canada's 2019 Annual Symposium, Brooke played an instrumental role in providing our attendees with novel and thought-provoking content.

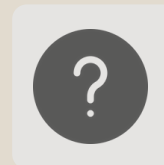

He seamlessly guided us through complex concepts with clarity and conviction and integrated dimensions that were critical to larger discussions occurring in our industry. The blend of real stories and well-researched data made the session both engaging and informative.

What's neXT?!

Brooke was a speaker at our "Leveraging the Longevity Dividend" symposium, co-hosted by What's neXT50 and the University of Toronto's CIRHR. His thought-provoking talk invited us to confront inconsistencies in our values, and the practicality of his approach made that exploration empowering rather than daunting.

Brooke's humour and authenticity sparked meaningful discussions during and after the event, making him an excellent collaborator.

I highly recommend him as a compelling speaker who can inspire and challenge in equal measure.

From the first day we met it was clear that Brooke was going to be an excellent collaborator. Our executive audience in the mini-MBA Program can be tough to impress—it takes someone who is willing to bring practical solutions and a down-to-earth approach to gain their trust. Brooke did so easily by addressing the real challenges they face in their industries, building off them organically to foster a true dialogue with the participants.

He brings a sharp sense of humour and a wealth of consulting experience to enrich each session, which offer a great balance of structured content and space for exploration. For one of our most integral programs, Brooke has earned our confidence and then some.

Our work at Capitals Hub Canada focuses on systemic change, so it's incredibly valuable to us how Brooke reduces complexity and makes content approachable and actionable. His presentation offered a practical framework for shifting from gridlocked polarization to productive dialogue.

This was more than “just a talk about change”—he showed us how to create the conditions for change, with concrete steps we could take immediately. Since his keynote, Brooke has continued to be a key thought partner for our organization. Brooke constantly delivers value. He invests in the people he works with and clearly cares about our success.

I will attend any presentation that Brooke delivers. On any topic. And I badger colleagues/friends to attend as well. Why? Because every time I've heard Brooke speak, it's been incredibly practical. He prepares his material with obvious care and thoughtfulness. And there's no filler: it's all engaging, relevant, or actionable—and the overwhelming majority of the time it's all three.

And as an event organizer, working with Brooke in the lead up is always a pleasure, because he and his team are super responsive and easy to work with. If you're looking for a speaker who delivers both on stage and behind the scenes, Brooke is the one to call.

We had the pleasure of inviting Dr. Brooke Struck to speak about behavioural finance and leadership skills for financial professionals.

Brooke has a remarkable ability to make complex topics not only approachable but genuinely engaging—whether he’s using humour to lighten the subject or offering a candid, unfiltered perspective, he does so without sacrificing any depth of the subject matter.

What I appreciated most was how practical the session was—he didn’t just talk theory. He offered clear, actionable takeaways that felt relevant and realistic, not just nice ideas on paper. His mix of insight, approachability, and real-world relevance are why his sessions are so valuable.

Brooke's contribution was a highlight at our event, and his impact came both from what he said and from how he interacted. His presentation brought ideas about sustainable systems and behaviour change together with his lived experience. In addition, his engagement with the panel (which I moderated) helped weave together insights from various speakers, and his answers to audience questions were straightforward and frank.

He helped us bring forward and consider new ideas, and to better understand our differing perspectives. I wouldn't hesitate to recommend him as a speaker for similar types of cross-cutting discussions.

Our Team was eager to bring behavioural science perspectives into the way we think and how we design our knowledge management interventions. That's exactly what Brooke delivered: he helped us go beyond our usual thinking, ask different questions and discover impactful approaches.

We're now in implementation, and the concrete solutions and plans are proving to be effective in achieving our objectives. Brooke is a pleasure to work with, and his approach builds the capacity to make us autonomous.

I look forward to continue engaging with Brooke in our future work.

Brooke was an incredible partner in helping our team design meaningful learning experiences for our leaders and employees. He worked seamlessly with our team to ensure every session was deeply relevant to our organizational context – from customizing a stakeholder management workshop to co-creating an innovation activity for 400+ employees.

What really set Brooke apart was his flexibility and responsiveness to our evolving needs. As priorities shifted, he adapted with ease and always focused on delivering content that felt timely, relatable, and actionable. He made complex ideas accessible, encouraged real dialogue, and left participants with clear, practical takeaways.
